'LEAFING' A PROBLEM. Falling leaves are consistently a problem to all communities. Here, the town's single leaf loader offers some relief as it makes its way over town streets. The machinery has been busy despite trees in many areas of town not having shed their coats as yet.

Evaluation Committee Studies High School

A team of 25 evaluators from the New England Council of Colleges and Secondary Schools spent Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week studying, observing, asking and listening in Andover High School's classrooms and corridors.

These educators -- a group of New England public school teachers and administrators, a college teacher and a representative from the state Department of Education all picked to evaluate Andover High School -- are conducting the once-every-ten-years evaluation to which the New England Council of Colleges and schools subjects all its member institutions, both public and private.

Chairman of the team is Eurtan MacArthur, principal of the high school in Exeter, N.H., and this is no coincidence MacArthur says the Council tries to judge a community's school from its own point of view, and thus looks for a team chairman from a similar type of community -- in this case, another New England town having an important and popular boys' boarding school in addition to its public high school. MacArthur added that a byproduct of educators' volunteer service on the evaluating teams was the chance to pick up ideas and techniques that might work back home in their own schools.

The member schools being judged take the evaluations seriously -- not just because NCCSS accreditation depends on it, but because it yields important self-information, and because each school's staff has played a role in the evaluation.

"The greatest value to Andover High School is not our being here now," MacArthur told the TOWNSMAN, "but the self-evaluation the staff had to perform last year in preparation for our coming." He explained that the New England Council sends out criteria and evaluating tools, including checklists, the members of each department in the school grade their own department and their school.

"Then we use their evaluations, to see if the school, in various areas, is as good as, or better than, they think. We have subcommittees

Leaf Loader 'Picking Up'

The leaf loader is now patrolling the streets, picking up leaves raked to the curb.

Problem is how to reach all areas of the town.

The machine has been in operation for over a week and finding it difficult to reach all areas of town.

Another problem, according to local officials, is Mother Nature failing to co-operate. In many areas of town trees are still laden with foliage refusing to drop.

Plans are to visit every street in town at least once.

There are several miles of streets being serviced by only one machine.

It was operating in the center of town early this week and making its way northerly.

Operation Morale

For the past five years, the TOWNSMAN has printed the names and addresses of Andover men who are serving with the Armed Forces in Southeast Asia so that friends and others in the community could have an opportunity to remember them during the holiday season with greetings and gifts.

The TOWNSMAN will begin publication of the list for 1970 with the Oct. 29 edition, and urges friends and relatives to submit names and addresses for that issue.

Committee Examines Four Sites

Four sites have been examined by a committee seeking an alternate site for a drop-in center for the youth of the community.

The group is using the former Central fire station on Park street which is scheduled for demolition. They were given a reprieve by the selectmen last week as the Oct. 17 deadline for abandoning the station approached.

Local officials, working with the young people were allowed continued use until an alternate site has been found.

Two sites examined during the past week include the Elks hall on Park street, and the former Mc-Ardle property on Central street. A vacant hall on the second floor of the business block at Main and Park streets has also been studied.

The committee is to meet again on Monday to evaluate the sites, then report on their findings to the selectmen and town manager.

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin said this week that he planned to appoint a committee of contractors to evaluate the fire station building and come up with

Disposal Site May Be Major Problem

The land-fill disposal site is presenting serious problems to town officials, one which will pose possible heavy financial consideration at the annual town meeting in March.

The present area is rapidly filling and continued lack of space in the years immediately ahead, dictate that a decision must be made soon.

The basic problem comes down to land and fill.

The present area, at the current rate of use, will soon reach capacity. Cover for the filling in daily of refuse deposits is also scarce.

Expansion of the present site would require the additional expense of spanning a brook which feeds into the Haggett's pond watershed area.

Acquisition of additional land would also present problems, since it would be costly.

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin said this week that studies have been made and are continuing with regard to the land-fill site problem.

A special committee was appointed by the selectmen several months ago. The committee has made a preliminary report, outlining cost factors in expanding the present site, as well as alternatives.

Also studying the problem is Public Works Director Robert McQuade. His department, along with the board of health, is making a comprehensive study of the entire solid waste disposal problem in the community and will be prepared to make recommendations to be presented to the March town meeting.

Downtown Business Block Sold

Transfer of ownership of the Barnard block on Main street is expected to be formalized shortly.

R. Milton Cole, owner of Cole Paint and Hardware Co., 10 Main St., confirmed Wednesday that it appeared the way was clear for his assuming ownership of the building.

The building was owned by Charles Dalton who operated the pharmacy at the corner of Main and Park streets prior to his retirement.

Cole whose business is one of several in the business complex, said that plans for the building are indefinite at this time. Considerable retail space is occupied on the street floor and there is additional space on the second story.

Selected To Participate In Program In Argentina

An Andover girl has been selected for an International Opportunity by Girl Scouts of America.

Elizabeth T. Black will take part in an International Encampment in Argentina in January, 1971, sponsored by the Argentina Girl Guides.

Announcement of the selection was made this week by Mrs. C. Maynard Nichols, Chairman, Regional Selections Task Force, Girl Scouts of America, at the Regional Selections Seminar held October 16 and 17 in Albany, N.Y.

After a few days orientation in New York, Beth will be spending the month of January in Argentina, one of six Senior Girl Scouts from the United States as junior ambassadors abroad. The girls will stay part of the time at the International Camp for Rangers in Argentina and part of the time with local families, and will have an opportunity for additional sightseeing throughout the country, while receiving invaluable practice in their conversational Spanish.

Beth is president of Senior Troop 39, Andover - North Andover, is serving her second year as the troop's representative to the Senior Planning Board which meets monthly in Chelmsford, and is editor of the Senior Searcher, the senior scout publication for this area.

Distribution of commemorative placemats and napkins have been made to local restaurants. Elementary art students have prepared posters which will be on display in town buildings.

Miss Alexandra Ratynski, director of school cafeterias, has arranged a United Nations menu for all public schools on Thursday which will focus attention on the international scope of the United Nations.

Mr. William E. Hart is chairman of the Town Committee assisted by Mr. Gerald Silverman, Robert Bowser, Mrs. Benjamin Bates, League of Women Voters, Alexandra Ratynski, Gwen Smith and Edward Grigoli.

Teaches Science To Deaf

An outstanding example of the U. S. Army's new Community Involvement policy in action is provided by Alfred S. Marotta of Colonial Drive, Andover.

Mr. Marotta, who is employed as a Solid State Physicist at the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown, is also associated with the Mass. Council of Organizations Serving the Deaf (MASSCOSA). He is founder and editor of the Council's newsletter, which now circulates statewide; and has initiated and is teaching an elementary science course for the deaf adult, for the Speech and Hearing Foundation of Massachusetts.

The MASSCOSA is a new organization, created this past year to unite the resources of various organizations scattered throughout the Commonwealth, so that more can be accomplished on a state-wide basis to solve the many problems confronting the deaf.

Activities such as Mr. Marotta's are strongly encouraged by his employers, the Army Research Center at Watertown, as a part of the U. S. Government's policy of encouraging staff members to involve themselves in community projects, and offering installation facilities and equipment for the furthering of these projects.

"To the press alone, checked as it is with abuses, the world is indebted for all the triumphs which have been obtained by reason and humanity over error and oppression." - James Madison.

They stopped along the way for cider and doughnuts and one of the girls played her guitar.

YES
NO

SUMMARY

The proposed amendment to the Constitution amends the existing constitutional provisions which direct the division of the Commonwealth into 240 representative districts and 40 senatorial districts. It provides for a census of the inhabitants of each city and town in the Commonwealth in the year 1971 and in every tenth year thereafter. The census in 1971 is to be the basis for determining the representative and senatorial districts for the ten-year period beginning January 1, 1975. Each subsequent census shall be the basis for determining the districts for each ten-year period beginning the fourth January following each census, so that the census in 1981 will determine the districts as of January, 1985, etc.

The amendment provides that the house of representatives shall consist of two hundred and forty members and the senate of forty members. In its first regular session following each census, the Legislature shall divide the Commonwealth into two hundred and forty representative districts of contiguous territory and forty senatorial districts also of contiguous territory. Each representative district shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of inhabitants according to the census. Each senatorial district shall also contain as nearly as may be an equal number of inhabitants according to the census. A representative district shall not unite two or more counties, towns, or cities, or parts thereof, or a city and a town, or parts thereof, in one district unless the same is unavoidable. Further, no town of less than six thousand inhabitants shall be divided in forming representative districts. It is also provided that the County of Dukes County and Nantucket County shall each be a representative district, notwithstanding the foregoing. The senatorial districts, each of which shall elect one Senator, shall be formed without uniting two counties or parts of two or more counties, unless the same is unavoidable.

Each representative shall be an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen at least one year immediately preceding his election, and each senator shall be an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen at the time of his election and shall have been an inhabitant of the Commonwealth for at least five years immediately preceding his election. Any representative or senator who ceases to be an inhabitant of the Commonwealth shall cease to represent his district.

The amendment also provides that the Legislature (1) may by law limit the time within which judicial proceedings may be instituted calling in question any such division and (2) shall prescribe by law the manner of calling and conducting elections for the choice of representatives and of ascertaining their election.

Finally, the amendment annuls the existing constitutional provisions with respect to apportionment of representative and senatorial districts, although those provisions will remain in effect until January 1, 1975.

Architect To Address Local Vale Church Low Income Housing Group Planning For Fair

A new residents' group, REACH, is bringing architect-engineer Neil Mitchell to speak at West Parish Church on Monday, Nov. 9, as part of its program to work for low and moderate income housing in Andover.

The public is urged to attend the 8 p.m. address and discussion. Mitchell is head of a firm which has developed new concepts of housing, to combine both quality and variety in its architecture with low cost in its construction, through modular design. His "Tinkertoy" construction techniques call for various combinations of preformed concrete and glass building modules.

Reach's objective is to provide new multi-family housing in Andover for individuals and families with annual incomes of under $12,000 -- the FHA's definition of the maximum of the "moderate" income range. People of all ages and backgrounds are expected as occupants of such units. Some will have lived in Andover right along, some will have family in Andover, others will be entirely new to the community.

"Andover was once a community of mixed income levels," a REACH spokesman points out, "but has been steadily losing that diversity in recent years, as new housing has more and more been aimed at high income levels. We would like to help redress the balance and restore diversity."

Reach was originally formed through the efforts of the Fisherman, a mens' group of the West Parish Church. It has been accepted as a committee by the Andover Citizens for Equal Opportunity. Recently elected officers are Norman J. Viehmann, chairman, Gerald D. Reynolds, vice-chairman, and Nancy M. Mulvey, secretary.

Members have visited housing units in other communities and have met with several architects interested in designing low and moderate income housing, such as Neil Mitchell, who has constructed housing units of this type in Cambridge.

Andover residents interested in REACH's objectives and future programs are invited to contact one of the officers, as well as attend the Nov. 9 program.

SCHOOL LEADERS. The student senate at Andover High school elected their officers this week, with a faculty member becoming the first president of the new organization, designed to bring students and faculty together to discuss matter. William Vickers, right, of the math department was elected president, while John Wooten, left, student delegate to school committee meetings, was elected vice president.

Student Senate Formed

The new Student - Faculty Government taking shape at the high school is a homegrown design without precedent in the state.

It is a three-tiered government carefully structured to stay close to student and faculty grassroots, and sets a unique student - teacher relationship.

One indication of the unique teacher - student relationship, says Principal Philip Wormwood, is the fact that the 18 students and 6 teachers of the Senate, the top tier of government, elected a teacher as Senate chairman.

Math teacher William Vickers was installed Tuesday as Student - Faculty Senate Chairman, with senior John Wooten as vice-chairman and Mary Lou Caffrey, also a senior, the secretary-treasurer.

Most students and teachers the TOWNSMAN queried (each group elects its own representatives) seem pleased with the form of the new government, which was designed by a group of students and teachers under Social Science department head Wilbur Hixon.

The middle stage of the government structure is broken up into six Area Governments, each corresponding to a neighborhood of homerooms in six different departmental areas of the school building, -- e.g. Area #1 is the Business Area, including rooms 102, 104, 202, 204, 208 and 210.

Each homeroom of students in the area sends two representatives to the area government, and the faculty of the area also elect two Area representatives. The faculty of Area #1 would be the business teachers, plus a share of those faculty members who do not have homerooms, and are assigned to this area.

The Area Governments meet weekly, and a clerk from each homeroom reports back on the business transacted, and records how each representative votes in the Area Government meetings.

The 24-member Senate is made up of three student representatives and one faculty representative elected from the Area governments on a one-man, one-vote basis. Monthly Senate meetings are open to the students, administration and school committee, and Senate member's votes are recorded and reported back to their constituencies.

But the key to the new government form is government by the many, not by the few. The Senate can, upon majority vote, make recommendations to the administration and also to the School Committee, but questions of a "substantive nature" -- dealing with rights and principles -- must be submitted to a vote of the student and faculty at large. These constituencies have further checks on their government representatives, since they also have a right of initiative or referendum petition.

New Faculty - Senate Chairman Vickers told the TOWNSMAN he took his election by fellow Senate members as an honor and a trust, and he looked to the new form of government to be a "true sounding board which will channel the voice of the school -- accurately to the administration and school committee." He pointed out that the Senate hopes school committeemen as well as administration members will join students and faculty in attending the public Senate meetings.

EVALUATION

for each department and area, each headed by a specialist in that area. They make commendations, and general recommendations where they see room for improvement, but it is not their job to try and tell the school what it ought to do. One of my main jobs, with new evaluators, is to be sure they leave their own school behind them; there are many ways to come by good education, and a technique that works best at one school, won't in a different community."

Andover's high school staff gathered to hear the highlights of the evaluation from the visiting educators yesterday afternoon, but the written report will not be ready for another two weeks, MacArthur told the TOWNSMAN. The report will go to Principal Philip Wormwood, with copies going to the sponsoring NECCSS, which makes the decisions on accreditation, and to the state Department of Education.

Principal Wormwood intends to make the evaluation report available to the public. "I'm sure there will be some recommendations for improvement, and rightfully so," said Wormwood. "That's what the evaluation is for."

Dr. John T. Batal, medical examiner, said that circumstances of the death still are under investigation.

The body was buried Sunday, and Dr. Batal said that he will review hospital records before making a finding.

The funeral was held Sunday in Boston with burial in Stepiner Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Memorial contributions may be made to charity.

Off The Top Of The Desk

A reminder of things to come descended on the area Saturday, as we well can attest.

There was that first real, crisp, cool morning, accompanied by the chilly winds while watching the favorite high school football game.

In between, however, there were snow flurries, which is just an early October reminder that it's time to think winter.

Wouldn't be surprised if many motorists suddenly were reminded it's time to winterize the car.

This is the time of year when non-thinking vandals ply their trade.

Many homes have been decorated for the autumn season, with corn stalks and pumpkins adorning the entrance.

Many times the pranksters steal the pumpkins and for no useful purpose smash them in the street, not only ruining private property, seasonal decorations, but creating a mess.

Back to the weather again.

Tuesday morning, early risers were greeted by an exterior of white adorning lawns and landscape.

The frost was a reminder that if the storm windows aren't up yet, it would be a good idea to get going this weekend.

Still hope the Farmer's Almanac is wrong in its prediction of a long, hard winter.

Fans who watched the World Series on television could not help but notice blue-eyed, blond "groundskeeper" Linda Wareheim. She's the girl who sweeps off the bags, mound and shoes of the Baltimore Orioles' infielders after the fifth inning of every game at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore.

One of her favorite "tricks" is to kiss opposing third base coaches at the end of her performance. You may also have noted she belted ump Emmett Ashford in the rear with her broom in one game.

Just by chance, the TOWNSMAN'S Rick Harrison happened to pull a "play" of his own after the fifth and final game of the series last Thursday. As he was coming out of the ballpark after a champagne and beer bath (another one) in the Orioles' dressing room, Linda and he accidentally bumped into one another.

Our mutually-agreed upon apology was one of her famous kisses, which he of course accepted with relish. She and other newsmen told him he had pulled "a first" as Linda usually reserves her kisses for players and coaches.

They had a nice talk, and then she went off to her brother's car and he boarded a much less euphoric press bus for a trip to the airport and the flight back home.

A proposal to have papers and periodicals deposited in a receptacle at the town land-fill disposal site was rejected at the special town meeting earlier this month.

North Andover, however, is going to experiment with the idea.

One week a month, the town highway department will pick up bundled papers while making its customary weekly rubbish pickups. An open truck will accumulate the bundled paper and it will be sold for salvage.

The experiment will probably be looked upon with interest by neighboring communities.

Gleaned from the monthly newsletter of the Merrimack Valley Newsletter of the Western Electric Co.

Ernam Foster of London, England, knew he had a telephone... in fact he used it fifteen times to ask the post office authorities how much he owed for calls during the preceding eight months. The problem arose when, according to Foster, "they have told me they cannot send me a bill because I have no telephone. I invited them to phone me, as proof, but they never did."

Memorial Hall Library

U. N. Activity

Cooperation with civic groups to make the 25th birthday of the United Nations a success in Andover has been the central theme at Memorial Hall Library this week.

The League of Women Voters has been responsible for a number of exhibits on display throughout the week of Oct. 19. Posters made by school children from Shaw-shen, Sanborn, Bancroft and South schools were collected and hung by Mrs. Benjamin Bates and her committee from the League consisting of Mrs. Donald Mulvey and Mrs. Leland Potter. The League of Women Voters and the library are cooperating in the distribution of a newly printed pamphlet called "The United Nations After 25 Years." The pamphlet is available in the library.

Educational photographic sets of pictures depicting the work of world-wide units within the U.N. are also on display through the generosity of the Andover Committee for the United Nations, William Hart, chairman.

On Saturday, Oct. 24, in cooperation with Mr. Hart's committee, the library is sponsoring a film program for Andover students and interested adults. One film will be shown, "The Journey of Fabio Paccioni", and as an added feature, two local boys, Terry Bartow and Dan Innes, will speak briefly about their experiences as American Field Service representatives this summer. The program will be in Central Auditorium on Bartlet St. at 2 p.m. Everyone is invited; there is no charge.

The library has also a beautiful exhibit of foreign dolls dressed in native costume in honor of this important anniversary. The dolls represent many countries; they have been loaned to Memorial Hall Library for the next two weeks by Mrs. Theodore Russem, Mrs. Hans Marum and Miss Margaret Manning.

Hesitancy

The selectmen, we think, from time to time, have displayed a lack of determination in attacking issues, with the net result they find themselves in difficulty in reaching an ultimate decision.

Last week was a typical example.

Youth groups, and their advisors and supervisors, had expressed a desire to continue using the Central fire station as a drop in center. The group had been given until Oct. 17 to use the building, after which demolition was to take place.

No decision had been made, or efforts made by the selectmen, apparently to solve the problem of what was to take place after Oct. 17.

We will not debate the merits of the drop in center here.

The point is that since last summer, somewhere along the line, there should have been some decisions made somewhere to solve an impending problem.

The first thing the selectmen did, was to extend the time in which the use of the building by the young people would be allowed.

This is but a single example of some of the hesitancy with which the board acts.

Delayed decisions only lead to further problems, almost like the old expression states, "he who hesitates, is lost."

Hesitancy is probably good in some instances. Instant decisions sometimes prove harmful. On difficult matters, a little time may be required to reach a decision, but the emphasis should be on reaching that decision as speedily as possible.

There may be times when the board should meet in special session, simply to iron out intricacies of a particular problem.

Selectman Sidney P. White had suggested this on one occasion, but apparently, on the particular issue, a second ambulance, nobody else had the time.

There are other issues, which probably could have been resolved had it not been for hesitancy.

There was the decision on Bryant-McIntosh using the former Parker Manor. This was delayed from early spring until late summer. True, possibly the college should have moved in a more proper and expedient manner in seeking licenses, but certainly the selectmen were aware that the matter would be before them. In this respect, they could have prompted an earlier decision.

There have been dog complaints, tabled for two to three weeks to await further investigation.

Such items, assuredly could be taken care of in special meetings.

What help is the town manager to the selectmen when he fails to come up with concrete suggestions. He is being paid well for a full week's work and the voters expect to get their full value in return, which they don't seem to be getting.

To continue tabling items, even such important and costly things as acquisition of land for new schools, would appear only to slow down the smooth flow of municipal operations.

Attentive to the needs of the town and acting with dispatch, we think, would be more advantageous to the board, and the community as a whole.

The New Look

We are pleased to note this week, that pantsuits are now most welcome in the classroom, not only for the students, but for teachers as well.

A short time ago, the TOWNSMAN, took editorial exception to a decision of a municipal school administration south of Boston, which suspended a young student for wearing a pantsuit to class.

At the time, we mentioned that modern educators are so engrossed in progressive education that their eyes failed to comprehend the periphery of text and style.

Now we understand that the popular pantsuit is permissible for the young and their instructors, according to feature stories in newspapers and accompanying directives in local school systems.

If we had a hand in the matter, let us just say we were happy to contribute our little part toward the Women's Liberation Movement.

The attractive tunic and pants are most stylish and a welcome change at the front of the classroom, where the dress, over the years has gone from the depths of ankle-length to, in some cases, to "thigh."

The Chamber

The Andover Chamber of Commerce has taken on a new dimension this year; one commendable to the body itself, and surely one which will be beneficial to the town.

The Andover chamber is unique, in that for a community of its size, this town has a group of business and professional people who are taking an interest and making every effort to be responsible to the municipality.

Often such groups are looked upon by the general public as a group designed to promote individual goals, such as promotion of business.

Here, in Andover, members of the chamber have answered the challenge as issued by incoming president, William Doyle, last June, when he asked that they become involved in their community.

Today, the Chamber has many active committees, working with local officials and committing themselves to the involvement requested.

There is, of course, the business group, known as the Downtown Task Force, which handles retail promotional activities, including an improved Christmas lighting program, scheduled to glow Thanksgiving night.

But there are other committees.

There is a committee appointed to examine the issues facing town meeting in March, or whenever special town meetings should occur.

An Ecology committee is working to bring to the public the importance of pollution abatement. A committee which intends to be active in the fight against pollution and planning to make Andover a better place in which to live and breathe.

A public relations group has been formed to keep the public informed of its activities and to assist local groups.

Another committee is studying parking problems, a matter which has faced downtown Andover for years and still cries for solution.

The chamber in general is no longer a group of only a few individuals with a limited number of goals.

It is an active, involved group of men and women who have exemplified a desire to be of assistance to their community.

Their dedication to a commitment can only be beneficial to Andover.

What Our Readers Say

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN

First I would like to thank you for the publicity that you gave the C.R.W. ride which started from the North Andover common at 11 a.m. Sunday, October 18, 1970. 48 riders started the ride of 25 miles which went through North Andover, Boxford, Georgetown and Topsfield and finished at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Plant, 50 Glencrest Drive, North Andover where refreshments were served. 44 riders finished the ride and some of them were 14 years old and finished. Oldest rider was 57. This is one of the most scenic rides I have been on in the last three years. At the half way mark we stopped for a short rest and I was very surprised not to see a cigarette appear.

Regarding your editorial about Bicycling - at the beginning all the riders were instructed to obey all the traffic regulations - Courtesy should be the watchword - Pass on the left only - Obey the captain's instruction - Keep to the left unless passing. We like our riders to ride single file so that there is no chance of them tangling up with another bike. Also we favor bright colored clothing so that the riders can be seen. We do not allow two to ride on one bicycle.

I was glad to see no slotted catch basins in North Andover, Boxford, Georgetown, and Topsfield which would allow a bicycle wheel to fall into. Two years ago a seven year old girl died of head injuries when her bicycle wheel dropped into one of the slots.

Always ride carefully - happy cycling.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN
May I make a friendly comment thru your column as follows: A Bad Politician is often elected by good people - who don't vote.

May we in Massachusetts not be guilty of that.

To help avoid this may we all exercise our given right to vote.

Politicians are Statesmen and also become our servants when we the people elect them to public office.

So on November 3rd let us choose good servants to serve us.

Grace B. Peters

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN

Your editorial on safety and bicycling is certainly timely. We will be seeing more and more cyclists on our streets in the coming year. It's important that these people learn to enjoy the thoughtfulness and politeness that cycling permits.

Stopping for a youngster or his ball is an easy gesture on a bicycle. A carefully parked bike requires little of our precious downtown space. Calling out to friends and neighbors in town is a convenient pleasure astride a bicycle and not the half-missed horn-honk which mystifies shoppers during our rush hours.

Speaking of rushing, are your motorist readers aware that cyclists have discrete road-rights in the Commonwealth? It's true that bicycles aren't welcome on sidewalks and thruways but they are legitimate traffic on our thoroughfares and they enjoy the same rights and privileges as an automobile.

So the next time one of your motorist-readers is momentarily delayed for a cyclist I hope they will say to themselves, "There goes a non-polluter."

Glass Exhibit At Tavern

American lacy glass and early pattern glass will delight lovers of antiques in the last special public exhibition of the season at the Parker Tavern, 103 Washington St., Reading, just south of the railroad station, on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 25 from 2 to 5 o'clock. A member of the Reading Antiquarian Society who is a discriminating collector, is selecting some of her proof pieces for an intimate display on that day so visitors may share with her, the pleasure of this hobby.

Many of this collector's lacy glass pieces are the jewel-like cup plates used to protect the table cloth from the cup when the hot beverage was consumed from the deep saucer. There is even a tiny one from a doll's set. There are open salts, some in fanciful shapes. Be sure to notice the dainty cheese plate. These early pieces were the product of the process developed about 1825 of forcing liquid glass into molds of intricate design, especially with a stippled background. For the first time people could have glass tableware in a matching pattern at a price they could afford. Could it be that the lady who lived in the Tavern at the time, had some? The inventory of her estate lists glassware but unfortunately does not itemize it. This makes it especially appropriate that this loan exhibit has been made possible. Please note, it is for Oct. 25 only.

There are three hundred shades of blue -- and all of them turn up on Monday morning.

Receives Special Award

Thomas J. Connolly, Andover's assistant postmaster, was honored by the Postal Service on October 20 when he was presented with the Service's Special Achievement Award.

The presentation was made by:

Ecology Group To Issue Forms

Cards will be made available to the public by the Ecology committee of the Andover Chamber of Commerce, through which residents may register complaints regarding pollution.

The cards ask for information on the type of pollution, the alleged offender, the date observed, where and descriptions of the alleged offense.

The complaints will be investigated by the committee and turned over to proper authorities, of which there are several in the area and the state.

Atty. Thomas Tavenner, chairman of the committee, said the cards would be made available in businesses, banks and at the town hall.

It was the first meeting of the committee, one of several of the Chamber's community service groups, held Friday at the Andover Inn.

The group also discussed problems in the Shawsheen river, with a possible examination of the entire length of the stream, not just Andover.

The committee will be meeting monthly to discuss and work on all ecological problems facing not only Andover but those affecting the general area.

In addition to Atty. Tavenner, members of the committee include Mrs. Beverly M. Darling, Robert Webster, Thomas E. Cone, Nathaniel B. Smith, Robert E. Finneran, Paul F. Eaton, Mrs. Elaine Katz and Dr. Edward S. Miller.

Nearly 2 out of every 5 American workers are women. Most of these women are married, and half are over 39 years of age.

Christmas is just around the corner, or at least one youngster in town is getting his order in early.

The Andover post office received its first letter to Santa Claus Tuesday -- a neatly clipped form from apparently a children's magazine.

The local postal workers lost no time in quickly dispatching the letter to its North Pole address, where one must assume the jolly old man in red is beginning the process of making up his list.
